THE HAMILTON CASE.

Opening of the Trial of Mrs. Robert Hamilton for Assault.

The Court Room at May's Landing Thronged with People.

Mrs. Donnelly Tells Her Sensational Story on the Stand.

The Prisoner Gives Evidence of Her Hopeless Despondency.

Mrs Hamilton on Trial

MAY'S LANDING, N.J., September 18.—The court room was crowded this morning with people anxious to hear the proceedings in the case of Mrs Robert Ray Hamilton, indicted for an atrocious assault upon her child's nurse, Mary Donnelly. Mrs Hamilton sat beside her counsel and looked pale and wan, her face showing evidence of the strain of the confinement. Mr Hamilton did not look towards his wife. The work of selecting a jury was quickly disposed of. Mrs. Hamilton frequently whispered aloud during the election of the jury, and gave every evidence of hopeless despondency. Dr. Crosby, the first witness, described the nature of the wound and added that Mrs Donnelly was entirely out of danger. Mrs Donnelly then testified as to the facts of the assault and the court took a recess.

In the afternoon the nurse, Mrs. Donnelly, said that Mrs. Hamilton took out of her trunk the knife with which the cutting was done. Mrs. Hamilton called her a vile name and she demanded its being taken back, which she refused to do. She then left the house and on her return found that Hamilton's trousers had been cut in the right knee and his coat split down the back. The knife and garments were both offered in evidence.

Mr. Hamilton's testimony went to show particularly that the nurse was very abusive towards Mrs Hamilton. The rent in the coat he explained by the fact that early in the day on which the stabbing occurred they had a family quarrel. The nurse, he said, was very aggressive. A pistol was also broken by the defendant. She wanted a certain sum of money for which he was willing to allow her on their separation. The defendant had showed him bruises and scratches inflicted by the nurse.

Mrs. Hamilton testified that her husband April 12 the nurse said that he was also very abusive to her. He threw her on the bed and placed his knee upon the witness' stomach and then the knife which was lying on the bed was raised by her in self-defense. She stated she first met Hamilton four or five years ago at Mrs. Brown's in New York, being accompanied by Miss P[illegible]. She afterwards met Hamilton on the street and formally called upon her. Neither of her parents were living and she had money left her by her father. She said she was no relation to Mrs Swinton, but met her in the boarding house at No. 10 West Twenty-seventh street and she also met Josh Mann. She was married last January to Mr. Hamilton, but declined answering if she had been married before or was the mother of the baby Beatrice. Mrs. Hamilton said she was afraid to call her life her own during the time Mrs. Donnelly was in her employ. The nurse neglected the baby and drank a good deal. The nurse had made threats against her life prior to the encounter in which the witness stabbed her. Before the encounter the nurse had attempted an assault upon her with a whisky bottle. Hamilton had put the women out of the house but she returned screaming "Let me at her," and the fight ensued.

The physicians called to attend the nurse, Mrs. Donnelly, said that she was under the influence of liquor when they came. Mrs. Elizabeth Rupp, proprietor of Noll cottage, was present when Hamilton attempted to assault the nurse with an infants bath-tub. Mrs. Hamilton made the remark in her presence "Ray Hamilton you will have me sent to the gallows yet." Both then rested and Judge P[illegible] stated that the arguments would be made and the case given to the jury in the morning.

Ives on the Witness Stand.

NEW YORK, September 18.—Ives was again early in court this morning. The lateness of the session last night did not seem to have in any way interfered with him.

The first witness was Henry McGowan of the firm of Hellman, McGowan & Co. On June 22, 1880, the witness negotiated a loan for Henry S Ives & Co., for 5,000 pounds sterling from Kuhn, Loeb & Co. The collateral received was 25,000 shares of C., H. & D. common stock. On cross examination the witness said he was a witness for the prosecution in Cincinnati at the request of Russell Sage who held a loan of the firm.

"Do you remember saying to Ives that you had to testify or old Russell would call in your loan which was past due?" I asked. "I don't remember" replied McGowan.

"That loan is held over you yet is it not?" "Yes."

Hellman, McGowan's partner, testified that the loan was subsequently paid by Ives & Co. Edward Burns, cashier of the American Exchange National bank, testified that his bank held the register of the stock of the C., H. & D. road. He had difficulty in forcing Ives & Co to render the old certificates for cancellation after the new were issued to take their place.

After this Ives' ex-assistant cashier, Smith, was recalled, but nothing of importance elicited. The prosecution rested and the defense then moved for acquittal. The court refused to take the case from the jury and a recess was had until morning.

[illegible] in Consequence of a Flood.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 18.—Information received by the steamship Gaelic place the total number of persons drowned in the floods on August 20th in the city of Wakayama and in the districts of Monami, Muro, Hagoshi Muro, Nishi Muro and Hidaka at ten thousand. The river Kinokosi swelled to eighteen feet above the normal level and the embankments, and the village of Swashashi were washed away immediately. On the morning of August 19 an enormous mass of earth fell from the mountain near the village of Tennokawa, and changed the course of the river of the [illegible] which overflowed, submerging the village and drowning nearly all the inhabitants. A number of villagers belonging to Tanjido took refuge in a temple which was on high ground but a landslide occurred and about fifty persons were buried alive.

Lynchers to be Arrested.

RALEIGH, N.C., September 18.—Governor Fowle has offered a reward of $100 for the arrest of the lynchers of Jim Hyman at Murfreesboro last week. [illegible] the perpetrators of the outrage.

Abram Held for Murder.

ST. LOUIS, September 18.—As the result of the inquest over the body of young Thomas E. Jackson, who was killed in a prize fight yesterday morning, Abram, the surviving principal, was held in $2,000 bail to answer to the charge of murder, while the other seconds and spectators were held in $500 each.

A Frosty Night.

CHICAGO, September 18.—The signal service report of temperature indicates a frost last night for the region of northern Kansas, northern Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Nebraska and points further north. The reports to the Associated press are to the effect that corn is out of the way of frost and little damage was done.

Crew Into Bondage.

MADRID, September 18.—The captain, four officers and one passenger of a Spanish vessel have been captured by pirates off the Riff coast of Morocco and have been carried to the interior to be sold into slavery. The Spanish government will make an immediate demand on the sultan of Morocco that the prisoners be restored to liberty.

Drowned in Lake Erie.

CLEVELAND, September 18.—Nothing definite had been heard of the yacht Leo, which left Detroit for Cleveland last night with a party of nine on board till this morning, when the bodies of Ritter and Lawther were found by the life saving crew floating in the lake. The remaining bodies are being searched for but the work is slow and dangerous on account of the roughness of Lake Erie.

Adams Makes a Denial.

BOSTON, September 18.—President Adams, of the Union Pacific railroad, states that he never heard, outside of the newspapers, of the Union Pacific scheme for building to southern California. As to the story that the Union Pacific wishes to secure an outlet to the gulf via the Denver and Ft Worth road, Adams said: "I went there to look around and people said I wanted to build a road there, but I have nothing to say about it."

The Cliff Dwellers' Relics.

WASHINGTON, September 18.—Secretary Noble has directed, upon the recommendation of Inspector W. H. Harlan, that section 4, township 36 north, range 17 west, New Mexico meridian, in the state of Colorado, on which the ruins of the former residences and mounds of the so called "cliff dwellers" are located, be withdrawn from disposal until an examination of them can be held with a view to ascertaining their condition and historical value, and that steps may be taken to protect the ruins from wrongful destruction or removal.

Will Not Reopen the Case.

WASHINGTON, September 18.—On motion for a review of the decision rendered by Secretary Vilas in December, 1888, revoking the approved swamp land list known as No 3 Lakeview land district in the state of Oregon, Secretary Noble has refused to reopen the case holding that no great harm can result to the state under the decision as made and on the contention of counsel for the state that the legal title to the land was by certification rested in the state, the secretary says without expending an opinion, that conceding this to be correct the department is without jurisdiction to entertain the motions and appeals of the state, and the whole question is remitted to the courts.

A Map of Land.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., September 18.—The will of the late Prof. Elias Loomis was made public yesterday. It bequeaths the bulk of his estate, which is valued at from $350,000 to $400,000, to Yale University. This is the largest gift ever made to Yale. After various small bequests the will provides that the bulk of the professor's books, pamphlets, manuscripts, engravings, curiosities and household furniture shall go to Henry B Loomis of Seattle, W. T. All of the remainder will go to Yale in trust. One-third of the income from this trust will be given to Henry B Loomis, of Seattle, one third to Francis E. Loomis, now travelling in Europe, and the other third to the Yale observatory.

The [illegible]

BOSTON, September 18.—Inquiry at the Union Pacific office develops the fact that the published story of a traffic agreement with the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba road by way of Duluth has no basis in fact. President Adams while in Chicago did have a conference with Hill of Manitoba, but it was on another matter and nothing whatever was talked about in relation to the traffic arrangement. Adams' visit to Texas was with a view to the consideration of the old question of a "Sunset route," a water and land route which has been under consideration since the provisions of the interstate commerce law went into effect. No project or scheme of any kind with a view to changing the Union Pacific northwestern traffic is as yet under consideration. The story of the union of the San Diego eastern terminal company is also without basis in fact. The Union Pacific officials claim never to have even heard of the scheme and Adams is also said to be in the dark concerning it. The project of building a line to Puget Sound is reported from Portland, Oregon, is something for the future. It may be accomplished this year and may not. The Union Pacific will sooner or later, it is stated have its own line to that point. Adams is reported as saying that the general business outlook through the west and northwest is splendid and the prospect for earnings on all the Union Pacific lines as good as could be desired. The statement of the Utah Central railroad, the new consolidation, was given to the public for the first time to day and shows surplus earnings over all the fixed charges of $420,267.

SENSATIONAL STORY.

Crowin Said to Have Been Murdered by British Agents.

Disclosures Supposed to Have Been Made by Newspapers.

Le Caron's Daughter Reported to Have Made Revelations.

The Story Probably Without Any Foundation in Fact.

A Sensational Article.

CHICAGO, September 18.—The morning edition of the Evening Mail has a sensational article the substance of which is that the attorneys for the defense in the Crouin case have secured letters written by a daughter of Le Caron, the Irish spy from London to show that Crouin was not killed by Irishmen but by agents of the British government which had been duped by Cronin who was in the British government employ as a spy.

The story outlined in the letter is to the effect that Le Caron and Burlingham, with whom he was in partnership in a drug store on the North side were both British spies and that Dr Cronin learned their real character and in order to gain a fuller insight into their plans permitted them to think he could be bought. He apparently accepted their proposition that he enter the American branch of the English secret service, and obtained all their information without giving any in return. They became suspicious and sought to obtain from him certain papers given him in his supposed character of spy. He refused to give them up. Meanwhile Le Caron was summoned to England to testify against Parnell. Burlingham was told to obtain from Cronin the documents but Cronin refused to yield them and threatened exposure of the English practices in America. It was resolved to rob him of the papers and it was in that attempt that the doctor was killed. Burlingham has since sold out his drug store and disappeared.

The Evening Journal has the same story in substance, and adds that in opposition thereto it is claimed that at the proper stage of the Cronin trial the prosecution will produce as witnesses T. K. Kirby, who was in Chicago as an agent of the British government some time before the Cronin murder, prying into the secrets of the Clan na Gael, Le Caron the spy, and Patrick Cooney, familiarly known as "The Fox." Le Caron it is alleged has revealed to the American detectives the names of certain men on whom suspicion has not heretofore rested.

LATER Industrious searches by a Times reporter produced the Chicago correspondent of Miss Le Caron. Her name is Ida E. Moy, clerk in a sporting goods establishment. Mr Moy admitted that he had been the recipient of letters from Gertrude Le Caron. "I hate to have my name brought into this thing," said he, "but I pledge you my word there is not even a reference made to Dr Cronin in all the letters." Mr Moy was certain that Miss Le Caron had no other gentleman friend in Chicago with whom she corresponded, although he was aware she was writing to a young lady.

The Cronin Case.

CHICAGO, September 18.—The Cronin case was resumed this afternoon and the attempt to get a jury continued. Frank Woodruff's attorney applied to day to have his client set at liberty the legal time within which he should be heard or to trial having passed. The judge declined to hear the application on account of a lack of jurisdiction and the case will be laid before the judge in morning.

Proceedings in the case were not resumed until 1 o'clock this afternoon, Judge McConnell being engaged in another matter during a portion of the forenoon. The work of getting a jury was at once resumed. A little before adjournment four jurors who had been repeatedly questioned by both sides were pronounced satisfactory by the defence. The counsel for the state consulted and then announced that they also accepted the men who were promptly sworn in. Their names are James A. Pearson, Glenwood, John Calder, Evanston, Jno. L. Hall, Fernwood, Charles C. Dee, Chicago.

A Fire Bug Caught.

PORTLAND, Oregon, September 18.—A Post dispatch from Spokane Falls, W. T. says that a disgraceful exposure has just been made at Spokane Falls which implicates two members of the common council of that city and a police officer. The names of the persons implicated are Sidney D Waters, Peter Dueber, councilmen, and William Gillespie, a policeman. These men are charged with having formed a conspiracy to appropriate the funds and supplies furnished by contribution for the relief of those who suffered by the recent disastrous fire at Spokane.

Several weeks ago Robert Inglis was arrested at Chico, Cal., charged with having sold provisions and other supplies and appropriating the proceeds on having fled from Spokane Falls. On being brought back Inglis made the startling statement that a conspiracy existed among officials and others for the appropriation of relief supplies on a large scale. Inglis was examined and admitted to bail but has since disappeared, the supposition being that he was bought off. A partial investigation has been made that shows that several thousand dollars worth of goods have been stolen and converted into money. Waters, Dueber and Gillespie were arrested yesterday and appeared before Justice Dunning. The examination was set for Saturday. They were released on bonds of $1,000.

A Narrow Escape.

LEADVILLE, September 18.—Yesterday afternoon [illegible] were working at the bottom of the Columbia shaft, No 2, better known as the Esty shaft which is now down 610 feet, the bottom of the shaft suddenly heaved up and throwing rock and sand fifteen feet up the shaft, while water burst into the shaft in great volumes. The two men were badly frightened, but managed to get into the bucket and gave the signal bell to be hoisted out. Engineer Ben Swenson was standing clear to the engine and he quickly tangled on the Knights of Pythias Officers.

DENVER, September 18.—The grand lodge of Knights of Pythias convened in session here this morning. The [illegible] was taken up in the election of officers who are as follows: Grand chancellor, G. C. Carr, Leadville; formerly grand vice chancellor, Don O Hayward; Del Norte, grand prelate, J. K. Moffat, Colorado Springs; grand master of exchequer, J. B. McClellan, Idaho Springs; grand keeper of records and seal, W. S. O Brien, Salida; grand master at arms, W. A. Craft, Pueblo; grand inner guard, Ralph Talbot, grand outer guard, G. C. Westover. The remainder of the day was taken up by unimportant business.

A Grand Parade.

COLUMBUS, O., September 18.—The sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows was not in session to day, having adjourned until to morrow, on account of the big parade. The parade was a great success, it is said, ever held by the Odd Fellows. The number in line is estimated at from fifteen to twenty thousand. The turnout of the Patriarchs Militant was much larger than any other in the history of that branch of the order. A very large crowd viewed the procession. Just before the parade started Grand Sire Underwood was thrown from his horse and received painful injuries, but they are not dangerous and he took part in the parade. He could not, however, take part in the reception to night given in his honor.

Stock Market.

NEW YORK, September 18.—The stock market was again dull and while its tendency underwent a change from strong to weak and while the fluctuations were still confined to the smallest fractions in most of the list, the final changes are generally in the direction of lower figures. All the speculative interest seemed to be concentrated in Northern Pacific preferred and St. Paul, and the advance carried shareholders to join in pulling through the funding scheme did much to make the first named leaders to-day. Well into the afternoon the downward movement became pronounced and more animation was shown in weak stocks. Northern Pacific preferred, St. Paul and cotton oils leading the decline. The market dropped into an intense dullness and finally closed dull and weak at about the lowest prices of the day.

Fought to a Finish.

DENVER, September 18.—Burt McCormick of Chicago and Billy Woods of Denver two amateurs, to day fought to a finish according to Queensbury rules at a point 35 miles from the city on the Fort Worth road. McCormick was knocked stiff in the thirty ninth round and did not recover for some minutes. Both men were badly punished especially McCormick, whose eyes and face were cut and bruised in a terrible manner and one eye was completely closed.

Damage by Flood.

RICHMOND, Pa., September 18.—The damage caused by the bursting of a dam above Coatesville yesterday will reach many thousands of dollars. Hundreds of fields are a dreary waste of water. Many farmers and their families left their houses during the night and remained on the neighboring hills.

THE STREETS IN PARRISH'S ADDITION

Are 100 to 110 feet in width. THE ALLEYS are all 20 feet wide. There are no 60 or 80 feet streets, and narrow, 10-feet alleys, such as are found in other loudly advertised "Additions," with high sounding titles, where you pay high prices for lots, without duly considering that you are throwing away your money.

In the Alley Behind Every Lot in Parrish's Addition

There is a 3-inch Water Pipe, connected at Chestnut street with a 16-inch main, the Largest in the City's System. THE MAIN CITY DITCH, taking pure, clear water from the Fountain, runs just back of PARRISH'S ADDITION, and within a stone's throw of it.

YOU ARE SURE TO GET WATER

(Both from Pipes and Ditch) in PARRISH'S ADDITION if there is any water in the Fountain, even if other parts of the city are suffering from scarcity of the precious fluid.

REMEMBER THE FOREGOING, and then, when I tell you I will sell you a First-Class

LOT IN PARRISH'S ADDITION FOR $350

To $1,000—a full size lot 50 by 190 feet—do not hesitate a moment about buying. You can buy two lots on a corner, and erect pretty little cottages across them, giving each cottage a neat, pretty little yard, and readily rent them, owing to the location, etc.,

To Pay You 25 to 35 Per Cent Per Annum on the Entire Investment.

WHERE CAN YOU DO THIS ELSEWHERE?

THE STREET CAR LINE RUNS THROUGH PARRISH'S ADDITION, from East to West, and will doubtless soon be extended to the North, past the "Mesa Road," up to THE ROCK ISLAND SHOPS. Lots are sold on Terms to Suit Buyers, if possible.

I AM ALSO SELLING

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 16.—That the great [illegible] rals of the Union army in the civil war of 1861-65 were natural characters inspired by national patriotism and striving for national integrity, as contrasted with local or state prejudice and patriotism, receives an interesting confirmation in the fact that no state has ever ventured to either claim or sell exclusive credit for having given any one of them to the country, or to deem for itself the right, by [illegible] of citizenship of having life supplied within its borders. When Gen. Grant died the question of where his dust should be laid was agitated for several days. New York city, his last place of residence, West Point, where he received his military education, Washington, because it was the national capital, Galena, where he [illegible] out of the war and several other localities were deemed eligible for his tomb.

In the case of Gen. Sheridan, the controversy about his birth place has not yet been settled, whether it could be at Albany or New York or in a village in Ohio. In the case of discussion as to the question as to which state Grant or Sheridan owed allegiance did not enter. Another great Union general, in [illegible] respects the peer of them all, was born in one state, was resident of another for all purposes of the law in settling his estate, died in a third and was buried in a fourth.

Gen. George Henry Thomas, the Washington of the Union army, was a native of Virginia. He was born at Southampton, on July 31, 1816. At the age of 20 he completed the course at West Point, whence upon he was assigned to the artillery branch of the service. His was a continuous military life. Four years after graduation he was in active service in the Florida war for two years.

Four years later, in 1846, he engaged in the Mexican war, distinguishing Fort Brown and leading and fire at Monterey and Buena Vista. For services in these engagements he was brevetted captain and major. He was in active service in the war of 1849 against the Seminole Indians and then for three years he filled an assistantship to an instructorship at West Point. Thence he went to the frontier service in Texas and California. At the breaking out of the civil war he became colonel of cavalry, his first service in that struggle being in the early operations in the Shenandoah Valley. His entire service to the cause of the war was upward in rank and onward in the [illegible] and affection of his fellow countrymen. Perfect in physique, he was a soldier, a patriot and a commander whom the soldiery loved and followed with that zeal and [illegible] which children have to their [illegible].

Gen. Thomas died in Tennessee after the war until November, 1866. He then went into Kentucky, where he [illegible] until May, 1868. Then he was placed in command of the Pacific military district, which included Alaska. He was performing duty in this city when he died, March 28, 1870. The place of burial for this great soldier and patriot was very properly, I [illegible] by his wife. Miss Frances Kellogg was a native of Troy, N. Y. She met while the latter was at West Point. The acquaintance into love and love into marriage. Mrs. Thomas was in Troy much of the time her husband was in active service. When he died she determined at once that his remains should be placed in the military burial plot in Troy's Oakwood cemetery. The [illegible] from St. Louis to Troy by a military escort, with Gen. Sheridan in command. At St. Louis only a delegation of fifty citizens of Troy met the [illegible].

After the body had lain in state in St. Paul's Episcopal church in Troy, for a day it was followed to the cemetery by the citizens of that city [illegible] in a [illegible] Grant and his cabinet, Gen. L. Meade, McDowell and others, a great concourse with [illegible] Jas. A. Garfield, Sam. J. Randall, Horatio Seymour, Reuben E. Fenton, Governor Hoyt and hundreds of others prominent in national, state, military and [illegible] affairs were in attendance. In the process of settling the [illegible] the fact was established that he had once after the war selected a lodging place for a time where he had commanded [illegible] before and during the [illegible].

In June, 1870, [illegible] then three years after Gen. Thomas' death, Mrs. Thomas gave the contract for the [illegible] that marble [illegible] the Troy cemetery, and it was placed in [illegible] following, at a cost of $7,000. It is of pure Italian marble in the form of a [illegible] resting on a plinth of fine [illegible] granite. The [illegible] is in four [illegible] the body of the [illegible] the list and, over all, an angle of [illegible] with wings in its claws and holds firmly [illegible] the list. The [illegible] to the highest [illegible] of the wings of the [illegible] angle is not more than two feet high. The design by and symbolism of the design are in accord with the scholarly [illegible] of Gen. Thomas. The purity of the [illegible] is symbolized by the angle [illegible] of the [illegible], while the sphere and the emblems of war lie beneath its folds, [illegible] to the living of the patriotic [illegible] with which this [illegible] service for the preservation of his country. In the [illegible] the [illegible] are the [illegible].

H. Thomas
Major U. S. Army

The [illegible] bears the record of birth and death as follows:

Born Nov. [illegible] Va., July 31, 1816.
Died San Fr[illegible] Cal., Mar. 28, 1870.

The grave is by the side of one of the [illegible] ways of the [illegible] on a knoll, with an open [illegible] and a background of thick [illegible]. The lot is inclosed by a low iron fence, [illegible]. The obelisk [illegible] in it are relations of Mrs. Thomas.

In [illegible] part of the [illegible] at Troy [illegible] the tall and most [illegible] with that has ever been quarried and [illegible] up in this country. It is upon an eminence overlooking the valley of the Hudson for many miles, the Hoosic hills [illegible] the [illegible] northward and the hills of the [illegible] northward, [illegible] the valley directly west the great Cohoes cataract of the Mohawk river [illegible] full view to the spectator on the [illegible] heights.

[illegible] short works the bust of Gen. John E. Wool, who, like Gen. Thomas, served in all the important wars this country has had on its soil since the Revolutionary struggle. He was born in Pittstown, N. Y., in 1784, two years before Thomas was born, and died in Troy in 1869, three years after the death of Scott. Scott [illegible] the senior [illegible] Wool, and was retired about four years earlier than Wool, thus making the active service of the two soldiers of almost equal length.

Gen. Wool [illegible] life as a book [illegible] in Troy, but having suffered financial loss by fire, he went into a law office for the purpose of [illegible] a lawyer of his [illegible]. While thus [illegible] the war of 1812 [illegible] offering to young men an opportunity to test the mettle they were made of, Wool was among the first to embrace this opportunity. Choosing his field, he was ordered to obtain a commission [illegible] in the service. He was [illegible] and in a short time he was ready to march with a force to the Niagara frontier. In that war he distinguished himself at Queenstown, where he was wounded at Frenchtown and in other engagements, in each of which he gained rank in his rise to the rank of colonel and brevet. In 1832 he visited Europe for the purpose of gaining military knowledge.

During the years of peace from the close of the war with Great Britain to the beginning of the Mexican war he was employed by the government in various civil and military enterprises, the most notable of which was the successful removal of the Cherokee Indians west of the Mississippi river without drawing a single blow by force of arms. In 1841 he was made a brigadier general. His services to the country in the war with Mexico were hardly second to those of Generals Taylor and Scott. Wool was an able engineer and a most strict disciplinarian. He recruited fully 12,000 volunteers for the war, and, having organized them, marched them through the country's enemy's country to the east of war without shedding a drop of blood. At Buena Vista he won his most distinguished laurels. Historians [illegible] to him claim for him the credit of having virtually saved the American army from being annihilated and of turning impending disaster into overwhelming victory.

When he returned to the States from the Mexican war his name was on everybody's tongue. He was received in New York with enthusiasm. His voyage up the Hudson to his home in Troy was an ovation all along. The national government, the state government and the city of Troy each presented him a costly sword in recognition of his services to the country. From 1848 to the beginning of the civil war he was [illegible] part of the time on the Pacific [illegible] but [illegible] in the [illegible] with headquarters in the city of Troy. When the civil war broke out he was one of the very few military men [illegible] to [illegible] the government turned for [illegible], but, as in the case of Gen. Scott, he was too advanced in years to carry safely the [illegible] which that [illegible] laid upon him. In [illegible] he died in Troy [illegible].

THE WOOL MONUMENT

[illegible] directed out of a fund left by his will for that purpose in the following language: "[illegible] and direct my executors to pay to my wife such sum of money as she shall [illegible] up to $20,000 for the purpose of erecting a monument for her and me." Mrs. Wool did not expend the money. She died in 1884, and six years afterward her executors [illegible] the work.

The design of the [illegible] was adopted after it had been submitted to William Cullen Bryant, who said of it: "I approve of the design of an obelisk for the monument of Gen. Wool and Mrs. Wool. A simple shaft would be more appropriate when we consider that it should be erected in conformity with the general's will, as a body which he wished to bear his name forever." The inscription, which was [illegible] and arranged by Mr. Bryant, is on the die as follows. On the west face:

John Ellis Wool, b. Feb. 20, 1784. D. Nov. 10, 1869.

[illegible] May 7, 1846.

On the east face:

This [illegible] to Maj.-Gen. John Wool, the [illegible] worthy, [illegible].

On the south face is the record of Gen. Wool's [illegible]:

Gen. [illegible], Oct. 13, 1812.
[illegible], Feb. 11, 1814.
Vera, Feb. 22, 23, 1847.
[illegible] Feb. May 10, [illegible].

The [illegible] the die, a [illegible] and the shaft, the [illegible] from a rock foundation. The first base is 17¼ ft. [illegible] by 3 feet thick. The other two are [illegible] smaller. The die on which the inscription [illegible] is 6 feet high and 3 feet [illegible] at the base, rising to 6 ft. 21 [illegible] at the top of it. The [illegible] Egyptian [illegible] the [illegible] is to a height of 60 feet. It is 3 feet 6 inches [illegible] at the base and 3 feet square at the top, [illegible] rising in a pyramidal form 8½ feet high. The height of the monument is 75½ feet. The only [illegible] in this [illegible] that can be compared with the Wool [illegible] is the Washington obelisk in Central park, New York. The monument of the former [illegible] is only a foot and a half [illegible] than the Wool [illegible], while the pedestal [illegible] of the Central park obelisk is only five feet more than this one in the Troy [illegible].

The Wool monument is of Fox [illegible] Mass., granite, [illegible] Four gigantic blocks were quarried by a perfect [illegible] and [illegible] to Troy, a distance of 400 miles, by the [illegible] and the Hudson river. From the river at Troy it was [illegible] by [illegible] up a grade to a total elevation of fully 300 feet above the river. The quarrying, dressing, transporting and setting up of this second in size in this country only to the Washington obelisk, [illegible] more than [illegible] in transporting and [illegible] goes to and from Saratoga by the Hudson river. [illegible] may be the tall gray [illegible] on Gen. Wool's grave above the hope of the [illegible] heights.

In the [illegible] of Albany, N. Y., four or five miles from the graves of Gen. Thomas and Gen. Wool, there are two more to the memory of distinguished [illegible] in the Albany [illegible] of the Revolution. One is a [illegible] old [illegible] pile on which the [illegible] the name of [illegible] the [illegible] of Mark Quincy [illegible], Esq., of Albany, who died [illegible] 86 years old. In 1813, he served the army as a major and [illegible] the [illegible] Monroe in his [illegible] campaign. His most distinguished service, [illegible] that [illegible] the [illegible] in the Revolutionary war. The [illegible] in the Revolutionary war [illegible] at Fort Stanwix, now [illegible] the city of Rome on the upper Mohawk. He was one of the [illegible] specially upon the act of [illegible] the fort. Fort Stanwix lay in the way of Gen. St. Leger, who was [illegible] with the [illegible] of Burgoyne's army to Albany.

When St. Leger [illegible] at Fort Stanwix he invested it and [illegible] it for the [illegible] that he [illegible] a message from the outside [illegible] friendly [illegible] were detained by the Indians. Col. Gansevoort determined to take this message [illegible]. He [illegible] the battle of Oriskany, fought [illegible] of it, between the British and their Indian allies and Gen. Herkimer's volunteer militia of the Mohawk valley, obliged St. Leger to raise the siege and quit the country. For many days the garrison [illegible] a colonial [illegible] named Burns, a young man, with his right wing in check and [illegible] it from reaching on to Albany. [illegible] have had [illegible] if not fatally [illegible] the year of the American army. By whipping Burgoyne at Saratoga that army [illegible] the fate of the colonies. The house also [illegible] Gen. Gansevoort and his Fort Stanwix garrison of having first [illegible] Stars and Stripes [illegible].

GANSEVOORT MONUMENT

The old hero is buried in the family plot on [illegible] the little old fashioned marble [illegible] stands in the Albany cemetery. The inscription upon the [illegible] are as follows:

East face:

To the memory of Peter Gansevoort, Jr., a brigadier general in the Army of the United States, who died [illegible] of July 1812, aged 54 years, 11 months and 15 days.

On the north face:

He [illegible] under Montgomery in the [illegible] in 1775. He led Fort Stanwix against St. Leger [illegible] Burgoyne, and [illegible] the close of the war of 1812.

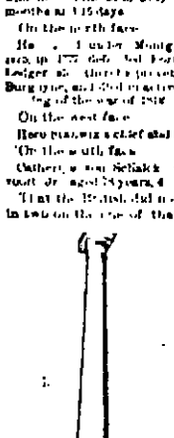
On the west face:

Here rest in a quiet and blessed defiance [illegible].

On the south face:

Gathered to his fathers [illegible] wife of Peter Gansevoort, Jr., aged 84 years, 4 [illegible] and 11 days.

That the British did not cleave the colonies in two on the line of the Hudson river and Lake Champlain was largely due to the prowess of Gen. Philip Schuyler at the [illegible] point of the junction of the Mohawk and Hudson, that is to say, for practical purposes at Albany. A native of that ancient city, he knew the strength and the weakness of the location as a strategical point. But for his patriotism and knowledge of the needs of the colonies, diligence and genius, Gates and Arnold and Morgan would have fought probably elsewhere than at Saratoga, and as probably fought in vain. In the eulogy and achievements of the distinguished Schuyler family he stands midway in point of time from Philip Schuyler, the first mayor of Albany (1849), to Philip Schuyler, the historian of Peter the Great, a brilliant scholar, and [illegible] Lieutenant Governor of Illinois, and [illegible] to public offices and [illegible]. He towers above the other members of the family, as his monument in the Albany cemetery rises above all others in that beautiful city of the dead.



THE SCHUYLER

Otis Philip Schuyler died in 1894, the same year that his great uncle, his father's brother, was killed in his duel with Aaron Burr. For sixty [illegible] years his grave was marked by no [illegible] or [illegible].

In 1840 his granddaughter, Mrs. Mary Sharp Miller, died at Ithaca, on the Hudson, having expressed a desire to erect a suitable [illegible] to his memory in the Albany Rural cemetery by formally [illegible] set apart a plot of 400 square feet to be kept forever [illegible] and exclusive as a tribute to Albany's [illegible] patriot and [illegible]. The next year, 1841, Mrs. Miller, who was the daughter of Gen. Philip Schuyler and Washington Morton, [illegible] to be erected this pillar of Quincy granite. The shaft, [illegible] in form and [illegible] a square base, a capital [illegible] a granite base and pedestal to a total height of thirty feet. From the capital, if it was [illegible], one could look out upon the city of Albany and Troy and down the Hudson valley for [illegible] miles. The inscription on the base is as follows:

SCHUYLER.

A [illegible] as follows [illegible] into the plinth:

Maj. Gen. Philip Schuyler, [illegible] Nov. 22, 1733; died Nov. 18, 1804.

[illegible] the O[illegible]

Tobacco, alcohol and fiery condiments of all kinds are best avoided by those who have to speak much, or at least they should be used in strict moderation. Like tippling, the effect of cigarette smoking is cumulative, and the light but constant absorption of tobacco juice and smoke makes the practice far more injurious in the long run than any other form of smoking. Our forefathers, who used regularly to end their evenings under the table, seemed to have suffered little of the well-known effects of alcohol on the nerves, while the modern tippler, who is never intoxicated, is a being whose whole nervous system may be said to be in a state of chronic inflammation. In like manner cigarette smokers (there, at least, who inhale the smoke, and do not merely "puff it from the lips outward," as Carlyle would say) are often in a state of chronic narcotic poisoning. The old jest about the slowness of the poison may [illegible] applicable here, but, though the poison may be [illegible], there can be little doubt that it is sure. Even if it does not kill the body it too often kills or greatly impairs the victim's working efficiency and usefulness in life. The local effects of cigarettes in the mouth must also be taken into account by those whose work lies in the direction of public speech. The white spots on the tongue and insides of the cheeks, known as "smokers' patches," are believed by some doctors with special experience to be more common in devotees of the cigarette than in other smokers, this unhealthy condition of the mouth may not only make speaking painful, but it is now proved to be a predisposing cause of cancer. All fiery pungent foods, biscuits or drinks tend to cause congestion of the throat and, if this condition become chronic, it may lead to impairment, if not complete loss of voice. The supposed miraculous virtues of the mysterious potsets and draughts on which some orators pin their faith exist mainly in the imagination of those who use them; at best they do nothing more than lubricate the joints of the vocal machine, so as to make it work more smoothly.

Postoffice Inspectors Daniels and Branch, of this district, arrived in the city on Tuesday evening and spent all of yesterday inspecting the accounts of Postmaster Meier. Everything was found in good order. Mr. Meier being considerably [illegible] in his cash.

It was stated by the Salvation Army people yesterday that Captain Chiles, formerly in charge of the movement here, was to be married last night at Denver, to Captain Corcoran, also a former resident here.

It was remarked yesterday that Sheriff Jackson would raid the saloons, dance halls and other institutions of vice at Colorado City last night, under instructions of the board of county commissioners. He went to Colorado City last night accompanied by a number of deputies but at a late hour they had not been interfered with.

Charlie Craig, Colorado Springs' well known artist, who has been sorely afflicted with rheumatism for a long time, declares that he has arranged for a race between all the cripples and rheumatics in the city. It is to be mile heats, three heat out of five, and time and place not yet designated. The stakes are to be put up by the best [illegible] men, and A. Armstrout, another one of the afflicted, is to start the subscription.

BROOKVALE!

Brookvale is What and Where?

It is the new and attractive site platted into tracts of from one acre to four acres, located south and adjoining "West Colorado Springs," being only one block from the street car line and the main thoroughfare connecting Colorado Springs and Colorado City.

RESIDENCE. A number of the lots are so located as to invite those to build, who wish to secure for themselves beautiful sites for homes. They are slightly elevated, and present a most elegant view of "The Sister Cities" and the surrounding country. They are laid out on the liberal broad gauge plan, so that one may have ample room to make beautiful grounds.

WATER SUPPLY—Without water the most fertile soil is worthless. Brookvale is well supplied with water, having the first ditch right on the Fountain Creek.

GARDEN TRACTS—While not of these lots are especially desirable as residence sites, others are certainly calculated for Gardens. They are level as a floor, with a soil of the richest quality, and have an abundant water supply, and then when we take into consideration their nearness to market, we must come to the conclusion that for garden lots they can not be surpassed.

Do You Wish to Purchase One of These Garden Tracts Cheap?

If so come now and we will make you a present of one of these choice building sites in addition.
